

Exploring More On Oahu's North Shore

Oahu bound clients looking for a day trip to remember are recommended to take some time to explore the island's North Shore, a destination famed for surfing but also home to Hawaiian culture, food and art.

The North Shore is only an hour's drive from Waikiki via Central Oahu, however, the slightly longer Windward Coast route (pictured above) is recommended, as it offers better views. Along this route, clients can also stop at famous surf breaks such as Waimea Bay, Banzai Pipeline and Sunset Beach.

For food, the shore's shrimp trucks are a must-try, while those looking for something sweeter can opt for the famous chocolate haupia cream pie at Ted's Bakery in Sunset Beach.

... Culture

Looking to culture, those exploring the shore can head to Waimea Valley. The valley offers clients the chance to learn about ancient Hawaiian culture and practices as well as explore world class botanical gardens and historical sites.

For a bit of retail therapy (and shaved ice) clients can head to Haleiwa. The small town boasts galleries, boutique and restaurants and is also home to the famous Matsumoto Shave Ice.

... Surfing

Of course, the North Shore is the go-to for any surf fan, as well as those just interested in watching a few hang 10s. It is recommended surf-fans head here in Nov and Dec. At this time events such as the Vans Triple Crown of Surfing take place, attracting some of the world's best surfers. Dates vary depending on surf conditions.
